Agenda Item No. 6.0 ANNOUNCEMENTS

Agenda Item No. 6.1 Spotlight on Education

February is designated as School Board Appreciation Month, and Student Representative to the Board, Ms. Sanuthi Amarasinghe honored the School Board with the Spotlight on Education introduction.

I had the opportunity the other day to do a little research and I discovered that during 2022, there were 34 meetings of this Board. This estimate, of course, is only a snapshot of the dedication of School Board members who dedicate many hours serving on important committees, visit our schools, attend community forums and conversations, interact with myriad government officials on behalf of our students, families and employees, respond to constituents and participate in such important events as graduations and other celebrations at many of our schools.

February is School Board Appreciation Month and the theme this year is Rising to the Challenge.

These words and the responsibilities they embrace could not be a more fitting description of the leadership, courage and focus of this Board. Each of you has made standing up for the equity, excellence, families and communities and wellness values in our strategic plan, each of you has made this standard operating procedure. Despite appearances, this is never as easy as it sounds.

Here's how the Virginia School Board Association characterizes this month--- "An opportunity for your school division and community to build a stronger understanding of the crucial role school boards assume in a representative democracy." As the student representative on this Board, I have a unique vantage point with which to view this crucial role. I am certain that there is no one in our audience this evening, in person or at home, whose life has been un-lifted by the work of this Board.

One of our schools took to heart the meaningfulness of this occasion. They made this Board their own study of democracy. Fourth and fifth graders at Red Hill Elementary School researched the role of School Boards and thoughtfully considered how you have changed their lives. In the spirit of representative democracy, I would suggest they speak for students across every one of our schools in expressing what your service has meant to them. Red Hill's outstanding principal, Nancy McCullen, is with us this evening and she has some very special guests with her. I would like to ask Principal McCullen and her guests to join us at the podium and share with us, their own insight and maybe a gift that say Thank You much more forcefully than I can.

VIRGINIA DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION – HISTORY AND SOCIAL SCIENCE STANDARDS

Resolution read into the record by Vice Chair Le

WHEREAS, every seven years, as provided for in the Code of Virginia, the state Department of Education is required to review and approve the history and social science standards for all public school divisions in the Commonwealth; and,

WHEREAS, these standards directly impact student discovery, understanding and learning about the historical events, influences and developments that have shaped our state and nation, resulting in a better informed and responsible citizenry, committed to equality and justice under the law and the prosperity of all communities, and,

WHEREAS, these standards at their most optimum, must advance, within each student, the knowledge and skills required to strengthen our democratic institutions, including the constitutional rights and privileges and protections of all, and the guarantee of equality and justice for all, and,

WHEREAS, these standards offer the opportunity for all Albemarle County students to realize the promise of our strategic plan, that all graduates possess such vital and cherished civic, personal and professional competencies as adaptability, anti-racism, creativity, critical thinking, empathy and social justice and inclusion,

WHEREAS, the process by which these outcomes are best achieved is a collaborative one, in which all voices are heard and respected, governed by the wisdom, experience and judgement of those closest to the classroom, whose professional insight and student relationships provide them with a unique perspective on how to engage students in serious matters of study, and,

WHEREAS, WHEREAS just such a group of social studies teachers from across the Commonwealth came together over the course of an extended period of time to develop recommendations on standards that are responsive to the learning needs and the academic development of students in 2023 and beyond, and,

WHEREAS, this research and collective input were conducted at the behest of the state Department of Education in 2020 but unilaterally rejected by the state Department of Education in 2022, and,

WHEREAS, these actions have been described by the National Council for Social Studies, the Virginia Social Studies Leaders Consortium, the American Historical Association and the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development as a “breach of the public trust,” and,

WHEREAS, the department of education has put forth a set of standards, using an approach described by the above professional organizations as “lacking transparency and developed in isolation,” and,

WHEREAS, this new version would return students to the rote learning that ill prepared students for lifelong learning and success, contrary to the commitment of this Board to all Albemarle County public school students and families, and

WHEREAS, these new standards contain such serious factual inaccuracies as describing the founding of the NAACP in the early 20th century as a part of the reconstruction that took place just after the Civil War, and,

WHEREAS, the proposed new standards for the next seven years conflict with the goals of the Albemarle County Public Schools social studies curriculum, which emphasizes project-based learning, student-initiated research, the use by students of primary sources, the promotion of critical thinking skills, the exploration and examination of the experiences and perspectives of all who comprise the history of Virginia and that of the United States, goals which we believe will prepare all students to be valued contributors to the success of their families, communities and organizations, and,

WHEREAS, the state Board of Education will be conducting a public hearing on the department of education’s revised draft standards of learning for social studies at Piedmont Virginia Community College on Wednesday, March 15 beginning at 7 p.m.,

BE IT RESOLVED that the Albemarle County School Board calls upon the state Board of Education to “constructively construct a curriculum framework” consistent with the established collaborative process that governed the development of learning standards for many years, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the state Board of Education revise the proposed standards now before it to incorporate the recommendations of leading educators from across the Commonwealth with a strong emphasis on standards that are wholly truthful, inclusive and inquiry-based, and,

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that all interested parties be urged to attend and submit comments to the state Board of Education during the public hearing that will be conducted at Piedmont Virginia Community College next month prior to the Board’s decision on the new standards that is expected to be finalized on April 20.

ABSENT: Dr. Acuff

Motion carried by a 6:0:1 vote.
